Felicia Gayle, a former reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, wanted to make a difference in the lives of young people. Her concern about teen pregnancy and her interest in mentoring led her to the Teen Pregnancy & Prevention Partnership where she was one of the first members of the organization. The Felicia Gayle Youth Leadership Award honors her commitment to helping teens make healthy decisions for themselves and their peers.

Recommendation Letter Guidelines:

Please answer the following questions.

1. How do you know the applicant?
2. How has the applicant demonstrated leadership or participation in activities that make a difference in the lives of St. Louis area youth and encourage young people to live healthy lives? If applicable, how has this youth's activity encouraged other teens to prevent teen pregnancy?
3. What difference will the $500.00 Felicia Gayle Youth Leadership Award make to the applicant?
